

Wisconsin Handweavers Presents:

Bandhani Dyeing

with Adil Khatri (Adilbhai), Bandhani artist from Kutch, India
And Judy Frater, expert on Kutch textiles
Workshop by Textiles Live LLC www.textileslive.com

Discover a unique Indian textile dyeing tradition with a master of the technique

Monday, November 11, 2024, 9:30 – 4:00 at ABK Weaving Center, 1250 E. Burleigh, Milwaukee

Learn traditional Kutch bandhani (tie dye), using techniques that combine bandhani (tiny dots), shibori (stitched resist), and clamp dye. Once you have the concepts, you can design your own motifs and use them to embellish your work.

Skill level: Beginner and above. If you know any shibori or dyeing, it's a plus!

Workshop cost: $100 includes dyeing materials. You will need to bring your own non-synthetic fabric for dyeing. Complete information will be provided to participants.

Adilbhai is a graduate of a design program founded by Judy Frater. His dyeing skills are excellent. He creates exquisite traditional classics, as well as exciting innovations. His imaginative and skilled work has earned him many awards and brought him opportunities to work with designers, scholars, and customers from all over the world.

Registration closes October 12 or when a maximum enrollment of 12 people is reached. WHI offers scholarships for all workshops. For scholarship or workshop information contact Paula Holman, 414-324-4170 or holmanpk@yahoo.com.
